

Abstract

The invention relates to a process and the corresponding plant for the production of micro-capsules on an industrial scale for the application in foodstuffs technology, chemical and/or pharmaceutical industry, and in medicine. Said capsules are produced by the so-called coacervate method. They may contain non-living ingredients, e. g. solids, liquids, etc. and also living cells or micro organisms such as bacteria, for example.